Intersecting spacetimes: how online and offline worlds interact

My body (I cannot help it) is not plunged into a single, specified space. It works in Euclidean space, but it only works there. It sees in a projective space; it touches, caresses, and feels in a topological space; it suffers in another; hears and communicates in a third....My body, therefore, it not plunged into a single space, but into the difficult intersection of this numerous family, into the set of connections and junctions to be established between these varieties. This is not simply a given or is not always already there, as the saying goes. This intersection, these junctions, always need to be constructed....My body lives in as many spaces as the society, the group, or the collectivity have formed... (Serres 44-45)
